Abstracts

The North America cigarette market size reached US$ 48.4 Billion in 2023. Looking forward, IMARC Group expects the market to reach US$ 49.6 Billion by 2032.

Cigarettes are thin cylinders of finely cut tobacco that are rolled in paper for smoking. They were invented in the 9th century in the form of reeds and smoking tubes but are currently available in a wide variety of nicotine or other psychoactive herbal substances.

North America represents the third largest market for cigarettes, with their demand rising due to the increasing population, and hectic and stressful lifestyles of individuals in the region. In addition to this, the availability of distinctive and innovative flavors, such as menthol, mango, clove, chocolate, cherry, mint and orange, has increased the consumption of cigarettes across its major markets. Moreover, the introduction of gender-targeted products, such as skinny and flavored cigarettes for female smokers, has also boosted the overall sales of cigarettes. Furthermore, rising consumer awareness towards the adverse health effects of cigarettes has led to a rise in the demand for nicotine-free e-cigarettes.
