Vinegar is a type of condiment or preservative which is obtained by the fermentation of dilute alcoholic liquids, such as wine, cider, beer, and fermented fruit juice. It contains vitamin B-1 and riboflavin that helps in improving the heart health and controlling the belly fat as well as blood sugar level. Owing to this, vinegar is widely used as a key ingredient in cleaning, medical, pest control, and personal care products.

At present, North America represents one of the largest markets for vinegar on account of the growing health awareness among individuals about lifestyle diseases such as diabetes and high cholesterol. Moreover, the developed food and beverage industry in the region is contributing to the growth of the market. Apart from this, a rise in the demand for organic products that offer anti-bacterial benefits is boosting the overall sales of vinegar in the region.
