Abstracts

Aromatics are hydrocarbons made mostly of hydrogen and carbon. Aromatics are compounds produced from crude oil and, to a lesser extent, coal. Benzene, toluene, and xylenes are the three most important aromatics. They serve as the foundation for a variety of consumer goods. These consumer goods feature benefits including longevity, safety, comfort, and lightweight construction. Due to the fact that aromatics are viewed as a byproduct, the price and demand of the global aromatics market have changed during the past ten years.
