Abstracts

The "Global bio-based coating market analysis to 2030" is a specialised and in-depth investigation into the chemicals and materials sector with a focus on the examination of global market trends. The study seeks to present a comprehensive market segmentation by type and applications of the bio-based coating industry. Throughout the projected period, the market for bio-based coatings is anticipated to expand significantly. The research analyses important trends and opportunities in the market and offers vital information on the market position of the major bio-based coating market players. The type and application categories are used to segment the global market for bio-based coatings. The global market for bio-based coatings is divided into categories based on type, including acrylic, alkyds, epoxy, polyester, urethane, and others. The market is divided into categories based on application, including automotive, wood, paper, building & construction, food packaging, and others.
