Abstracts

The real estate sector contributes significantly to the Indian GDP (approximately 5% to the GDP); a buoyant sector results in cascading positive effects on the economy. Moreover, the real estate sector has grown significantly over the past decade, with tangible transformation in quality and business standards. However, due to lack of regulations and effective policies, the sector is experiencing many challenges. The present economic environment has impacted the real estate sector in terms of higher interest costs both for home buyers as well as developers, reduced liquidity due to slower retail sales and high cost of funds. The sector has been reeling under slowing down of demand for residential, commercial and retail segments coupled with higher debt burden striving for better cash flow management.
