Abstracts

The Asia Pacific Contact Center Transformation Market would witness market growth of 19.2% CAGR during the forecast period (2020-2026).

The increasing trend of corporate image tracking on social networking platforms is projected to accelerate the acceptance of business transformation contact center solutions. Businesses are now transforming their activities to support customers via social media channels. This social media channel support provided by companies allows consumers to make purchase decisions.

Actionable insights from information collected from contact centers are urgently required. Contact center automation approaches are empowering companies to drive sales and offering actionable perspectives for better customer experience. In addition, these tools also assist businesses in forecasting demand volumes and scheduling qualified call-handling agents.

Numerous end-use industries depend on implementing host or cloud-based technologies due to numerous advantages it provides, such as faster deployment, enhanced flexibility and increased scalability. The segment of small and medium-sized companies is projected to emerge as the segment with fastest growth. Increasing adoption by small and medium-sized businesses of cloud-based applications enables them to bring their different business resources together to create one powerful platform. This, in turn, greatly allows small and medium-sized businesses to improve their efficiency and profitability.

By providing improved user experience, the consumer goods and retail industry focuses on adopting innovative business models to meet customer needs. Consumer goods and retail contact centers provide consumers with various convenient means of communication and customized services, thereby fueling competition in the market. Increasing numbers of small and medium-sized enterprises coupled with technological developments in Asia Pacific are expected to generate growth opportunities for the region's demand for contact center transformation.
