Abstracts

The Asia Pacific Dental Cement Market would witness market growth of 7.7% CAGR during the forecast period (2019-2025). The Asia Pacific Dental Cement market is studied across the China, Japan, India, South Korea, Singapore, Malaysia and Rest of Asia Pacific. Due to the increasing use of dental cement in restorations, the restoration segment is expected to grow the fastest over the projected period.

The primary function of dental cement is the retention of restoration on a prepared tooth. Therefore, the increasing number of restorations over the forecast period is expected to push substantial segment growth. Ultimately, increased dental procedures stimulate restorative supply sales, which also support segment growth. In addition to the retention of dental cement, it has several advantages in the restoration process, like the strong marginal seal helps to avoid microleakage and secondary decay and durability. Because of these features, in the future, a significant share of the dental cement market is expected in the restoration segment.

The Asia Pacific region has been projected to grow more rapidly due to the growing numbers of dental restorations as well as increasing consumer spending capacity. Furthermore, growing dental tourism is presenting an opportunity for industry players in emerging economies such as India. It is expected that these factors will strengthen the regional market.

The market is classified as permanent and temporary based on type. Due to various features, like insoluble oral fluids, high resistance, and good dental compatibility, the permanent cement segment remained dominant in 2018 and is anticipated to see profitable growth over the forecast period.

Furthermore, permanent dental cement is produced of long-lasting components that are wear-resistant and have a durability of at least 10 years up to a maximum of 30 years.

They offer marginal sealing of quality and help prevent leakage and provide optimal protection against external dental tissues.

As they have a decent hold on dental restoration and teeth, temporary cementation is also expected to grow steadily. Also, when required, they can be easily removed in the future. Patients at first prefer temporary cementation for these reasons. Moreover, many dentists also chose temporary cementation to inspect the margins and contours of restoration to evaluate the adaptation of dental tissue to new material and also to assess the performance of the restoration.
