Abstracts

The Europe Liver Health Supplements Market would witness market growth of 3.92% CAGR during the forecast period (2019-2025).

Increased alcohol consumption across the globe has led to various health problems, including liver problems. In addition, the reduced quality of food and food products due to increased adoption of chemical fertilizers and adulteration of food products affect the function of the liver. The increasing prevalence of chronic disorders is a major driver of the market for liver health supplements. Various novel agents have shown improvements in clinical trials like obeticholic acid, thiazolidinedione and vitamin E for the treatment of non-alcoholic fatty liver disease.

In Europe, increasing the consumption of nutritional products in countries such as Germany and the United Kingdom is expected to encourage the adoption of supplements for liver health during the forecast period. In addition, the increasing adoption of vitamin products, especially among the working population, is anticipated to make a strong impact on regional market growth in the coming years.

One of the main drivers of the demand for liver health supplements is customer awareness of the commercial availability of the liver health supplement products and the health benefits of these products. In addition, the introduction of different platforms to access health supplements such as online apps, online retailers and other e-commerce sites has led to increased liver health supplement use.
