Abstracts

The Europe Location Based Advertising Market would witness market growth of 17.6% CAGR during the forecast period (2020-2026).

Location-based advertisement is an effective marketing strategy that can help ensure that mobile advertisements effectively stand out in the populated space of always-on digital creative. Putting an advertiser in a marketing mix allows their mobile innovative ability to communicate with customers with a highly developed relevance and context, which is what mobile consumers want in return for enabling advertisers and marketers to access their personal mobile data on a regular basis.

Location-based services are being used for information about the location of users through the Internet using geo-data in real-time. The introduction of mobile apps, wireless technologies, cloud networking, Internet of Things (IoT) and smartphone applications has resulted in increased traffic on websites. This has accelerated the adoption of LBS to optimize connectivity and boost customer experience depending on the position of the end user, which in turn is projected to accelerate demand growth in location-based services.

As a result, LBS has gained prominence in a wide variety of industries, including finance, defense and intelligence, transport, telecommunications, manufacturing, e-commerce, energy and natural resource management. In addition, due to the growing number of connected devices and machine-to-machine communication networks, a significant amount of real-time location-based data sets are being produced. This has contributed significantly to the growth of Internet of Things (IoT) devices across a wide variety of industries that help businesses build smart geo-mapping solutions. Key factors are expected to drive the growth of the global location-based services market during the forecast period.
