Superfoods are particularly nutrient-rich foods that are known to be highly beneficial to human health. Although the measurability of such advantages is still a matter of controversy in some research circles, the widespread and increasing market for superfood in Europe is paving the way for innovative new products and businesses. Due to the advantages they offer, the rise in consumption of this type of food is growing exponentially — in reality, the main cause of this growth in consumption is the reformulation of popular recipes by farmers. These recipes are now infusing a current, healthy and innovative touch to older products. This practice is undoubtedly gaining traction among the most innovative companies in very diverse sectors of the food industry, from confectionery firms to pasta manufacturers.

Early adopters are still at the forefront of new technologies and ingredients in this group, and countless subcategories are arising from the 'super' theme, e.g. Supergrains, Superseeds, SuperFats. Every new trend brings the tastiest and most fascinating ingredient story from diverse cultures across continents. Lifestyle customers will continue to welcome the revolution of superfoods as a new way of life. All of these also mean preferring vegan, plant-based and dairy-free alternatives.
