Abstracts

The Global Foot Care Products Market size is expected to reach $4.4 billion by 2026, rising at a market growth of 7.9% CAGR during the forecast period. Foot care products are important for keeping the health of the feet. These foot care products are useful in protecting and remedial care of the foot and ankle. Foot care products are helpful to restore foot issues like toe pain, finger pain, heel pain, and nail health. Companies are concentrated on innovative product packaging to surge the usability of foot care products. In order to see the ever-changing requirement of customers, enterprises are directed on R&D activities so as to introduce a new product line in the market of foot care products. These corporations are further capitalizing on packing and advertising activities to gain more visibility among consumers.

The global foot care products market has upheld a persistent growth rate. There is a growing requirement for foot care products that are helpful in maintaining better aesthetics and hygiene. Fast fluctuating lifestyle and altering fashion have augmented the skin exposure of feet, therefore leading to increasing demands for foot care products. These products have expanded more popular especially among women owing to the growing trend of open-toe shoes and sandals. Currently, consumers are probing for foot cleansing lotions, creams, repair ointments, and sloughing scrub which can show instant results. Mature baby boomers, a surge in the number of diabetic patients, and bacterial infections are the key factors that are boosting the growth of the global foot care products market. In addition to it, the rise in awareness, personal hygiene & fashion trends is some of the common trends followed in society. For instance, the pedicure is gradually adopted by people. Several foot care devices, gels, creams, tools, and medicines are widely used by podiatry professionals, pedicure centers, and diagnostic centers.
