Abstracts

The Global Security Orchestration Automation and Response (SOAR) Market size is expected to reach $2.3 billion by 2025, rising at a market growth of 16.3% CAGR during the forecast period. Market growth is influenced by factors like growing cyber-attacks, absence of staff availability, strict laws and compliance, absence of centralized views on threats, and a large amount of false alerts that contribute significantly to the SOAR ecosystem.

SOAR (Security Orchestration, Automation and Response) is a solution stack of compatible software programs that enables an organization to gather information from various sources on security threats and cope without human help to low-level security incidents. The purpose of using a SOAR stack is to make physical and digital security activities more efficient. The term can be applied to compatible products and services that assist to identify, prioritize, standardize and automate incident response functions.

The cloud, the internet of things, and mobile today has significantly expanded the surface of the attack. Threat detection tools safeguard various network components. The deployment of different safety point solutions, however, has developed gaps in visibility. Additionally, there are vulnerabilities in data silos. Closing these gaps and incorporating information needs substantial resources, let alone time. At the same time, security teams are further overwhelmed by the alerts produced by the detection tools. If it remains this way, then the analysis of threat alerts from the disparate sources remains a manual, slow, and ineffective method.

Based on Component, the market is segmented into Software and Services. Based on Application, the market is segmented into Threat Intelligence, Incident Management, Network Forensics, Workflow Management, Compliance Management and Others.
