Abstracts

The vending machines are portable automatic machines that dispense different products when money is inserted. Developing countries have adopted vending machines which are very convenient to use. Vending machine technology continues to provide latest advancements such as face recognition systems, and ID card identification to check the buying history of customers, thereby ushering an era of technologically advanced vending machines. The use of vending machines helps companies in strengthening their pricing power, while improving on their operating margins. Customers also remain benefited with the right product mix offered by the companies. This would help companies to increase their sales per transaction. The demand for vending machines has increased during the decade and with the introduction of cashless payment systems, the smart vending technology solutions are gaining the momentum on a large scale.

The demand for self-service machines and automated devices, wireless communication, technology advancements and remote management are some of the notable factors driving the global Vending Machine market. Increasing urbanization and rising disposable income have fuelled the growth of vending machines. Governments of various regions restricted the use of food and beverage vending machines in many places such as schools, and colleges, thereby limiting the demand for these machines. However, companies have started introducing technologically advanced products under the strict adherence to the government regulations. Biometrics for self-service products helped consumers to experience secure and safe transactions.
