Abstracts

The Latin America, Middle East and Africa Fruit Beer Market would witness market growth of 4.6% CAGR during the forecast period (2020-2026).

The fruity aroma is a very important factor in fruit beer. The quality of the fragrance depends very much on the fruit used in the brewing process. Some fruits like cherries, plums, and raspberries have a fragrance that is more offensive than fruits like blueberries or peach. The hop or malt aroma is still present in the fruit beer, as it is the base aroma on which additional fruity smell occurs.

The low alcohol by volume ratio (ABV) of low-alcohol fruit beer is boosting its popularity, particularly among health-conscious consumers. Low alcohol fruit beer drinking does not affect the kidneys and liver and does not contribute to intoxication. These health benefits of low alcohol content fruit beer would further boost market demand. The industry vendors are widening their product range by introducing new low-alcohol fruit beer brands to focus on this rising demand. This would be a vital development that will have a beneficial influence on the fruit beer industry growth.

Several factors such as growing customer consciousness related to liquor's long-term consequences coupled with consumer desires to prevent headaches & drowsiness will propel the growth of the fruit beer market. Growing demand for fruit beer from teens due to strict laws on consuming alcohol at 16/18 years of age would fuel development in the industry. Furthermore, rising disposable income, increasing Western culture adoption, an increasing number of restaurants & bars, and relaxation points are expected to drive the target market to grow. In addition, the popularity of such drinks appears to increase with the time that propels target market growth.
