Abstracts

The Latin America, Middle East and Africa Mussel Oils Market would witness market growth of 6.44% CAGR during the forecast period (2019-2025).

Mussel oil extracted from green-lipped mussel is identified as a source of 25 different fatty acids, a major component of which is the omega-3 fatty acids. Mussel oil, therefore, has several health benefits and is extensively used in dietary supplements and for cosmetics purposes. Like most patients with chronic pain and/or inflammation, arthritis patients are always looking for a new and sustainable source of support. As a safe and effective agent in the struggle against joint pain and inflammation, New Zealand Green Lipped Mussel Oil has become widely popular in recent years. As the drug has grown in popularity, it has taken shape in many products and ways to receive the benefits.

Applications in dietary supplements drive the mussel oils market predominantly as the oil is a rich source of omega-3 fatty acids. Health awareness and awareness of the intake of RDA also contribute to the increased demand for dietary supplements, which in turn fuelled the growth of the market for mussel oils. Mussel oil has a high demand for biopharmaceuticals because of the anti-inflammatory properties conveyed by the bioactive compounds in the oil. Mussel oil extracted from green-lipped mussels contains a high amount of eicosatetraenoic acid as the only known source of ETAs is green-lipped mussel, which helps to prevent cellular inflammation.
