Abstracts

Consumer behaviour is relatively a new field of study and it evolved into mainstream post second world war. The sellers' dominant market has slowly disappeared and buyers dominated market has steadily grown. The shift in paradigm led the manufacturing community to focus more on consumer behaviour than on product itself. The study of consumer behaviour has evolved as an independent discipline in itself. The growth of consumerism and consumer legislation emphasizes the importance of the consumer over merely products and brands. Consumer behaviour is a vast field that focuses on studying how individuals make decision to spend their available resources (time, money and effort) or consumption related aspects.
