Abstracts

Molecular Diagnostics is used to identify or monitor biomarkers associated with any particular diseases or conditions. This test could also help in detecting and quantifying the presence of specific bacteria and viruses. These devices help surgeons in deciding that which therapy would work best on different patients. Molecular Diagnostics detect the diseases by analyzing RNA (Ribonucleic Acid) or DNA (Deoxyribonucleic Acid) in humans. These diagnostics are mainly used for clinical testing devices that are supplied in clinics, hospitals, laboratories, and research institutes.

High prevalence of Infectious diseases in USA is growing the demand for molecular diagnostic market. According to the Centers of Diseases Control and Prevention, Hepatics C is the leading cause of death in America. In 2014, deaths associated with Hepatics C were all-time high of 19,659. Currently, around 3.5 million Americans are still living with Hepatic C. Additionally; Tuberculosis is also becoming one of the leading causes of death. According to World Health Organisation (WHO), "tuberculosis, malaria and AIDS have caused over 300 million illnesses and more than 5 million deaths each year worldwide and the most effected region is North America. Hence, it could be expected that high prevelance of diseases could result in growth of molecular devices market in North America.
