UAE has been projected as one of the upcoming IVF market meeting all international health expectations and standards in terms of quality of services provided without discrimination. It bears a potential to become a hub for promoting medical tourism keeping in mind the recent changes that have been introduced by the government, healthcare facilities that meet international standards and the well qualified doctors that are willing to serve here.

The country has evolved in terms of mindsets pertaining to sensitive issues like reproductive matters and child birth. Women have started prioritising their career and professional growth over bearing children. As a result, number of children per family have reduced from around six to three per family. Women wish to plan their family beyond the age of thirty reducing their probability of natural birth. There an inverse relationship of success of conception and child birth with maternal age and beyond the age of forty, the chances stand bleak. Couples seeking infertility treatment are much aware of the possibilities that are available along with their success rates and financial restraints.

UAE meets all the essential requirements to set up a world class IVF laboratory, cost of skilled labour, Tax laws are pretty relaxed and earnings as well as savings are pretty high. The country is a cosmopolitan nation accommodating people from all over the world without any discrimination. The outlook for treating as well as receiving treatment from expatriates is pretty outgoing. Ethical issues are stringent to make sure there are no malpractices followed. Regulations have been so drafted to ensure welfare of the patients and overcharging can be prevented.
