In this report, LP Information studies the present scenario (with the base year being 2017) and the growth prospects of global Last Mile Delivery for E-commerce market for 2018-2023.

Last mile delivery is defined as the movement of goods from a transportation hub to the final delivery destination. The final delivery destination is typically a personal residence. The focus of last mile logistics is to deliver items to the end user as fast as possible. Last mile logistics has become a popular area of interest for retailers due to the growing demand for fully integrated omnichannel retailing. Evolving omnichannel needs have forced retailers to evaluate current transportation network capabilities and make adjustments accordingly.

Last mile delivery is becoming more important than ever due to the surge of online orders. E-commerce sales are expected to reach $1.35 billion by 2018, an increase of 28.8% from 2013. These expected increases span across a variety of product types including apparel, entertainment, food, health & beauty, electronics and more.

Over the next five years, LPI(LP Information) projects that Last Mile Delivery for E-commerce will register a xx% CAGR in terms of revenue, reach US$ xx million by 2023, from US$ xx million in 2017.
