Carvone is a member of a family of chemicals called terpenoids. Carvone is found naturally in many essential oils, but is most abundant in the oils from seeds of caraway (Carum carvi), spearmint (Mentha spicata), and dill. Natural D-carvone is founded in mandarin peel oil, while L-carvone is found in ginger grass oil. Carvone can be classified as L-carvone and D-carvone based on its chemical structure. Gum makers producing a spearmint product have a choice of flavoring with spearmint oil, natural L-carvone (derived from spearmint oil), synthetic L-carvone (from citrus fruits) or combinations, L-carvone is often used to enhance spearmint oil. Since there are not enough spearmint crops to satisfy the demand of spearmint flavor, including L-carvone, the synthetic carvone is more popular in consideration of stable supply and cheaper price. Currently L-carvone is the dominant type of carvone sold on the market, and 81.39% of carvone is L-carvone in 2015.

Over the next five years, LPI(LP Information) projects that Carvone will register a 4.1% CAGR in terms of revenue, reach US$ 56 million by 2023, from US$ 44 million in 2017.
