Copper wire is extensively used for electrical wiring in homes, commercial areas, buildings, and industries. Stranded copper wire, used extensively in the electrical applications is composed of numerous small wires bundled together to form a larger conductor. Stranded wire is composed of a number of small wires bundled or wrapped together to form a larger conductor. Stranded wire is more flexible than solid wire of the same total cross-sectional area. Stranded wire tends to be a better conductor than solid wire because the individual wires collectively comprise a greater surface area. Stranded wire is used when higher resistance to metal fatigue is required.

Copper stranded wire seals mainly focus on China and Southeast Asia, China copper stranded wire take about 41.03% market share of global copper stranded wire products seals in 2015, the followed is Southeast Asia, take about 16.56% .

Global demand for copper stranded wire is steady. The application for Energy and Telecommunication slowly lose their market share, in that, the growth rate of global market will slow down markedly. The uses of copper reflect its variety of material properties: because of its excellent electrical and thermal conductivity, it is ideally suited for use in electrical engineering, electronics and telecommunications. Its electrical conductivity is 1.5 times as high as that of aluminum, which makes copper the preferred input material for electrical mains. Despite its very good formability, copper is extremely strong with high corrosion resistance. The increasing interconnectedness in our offices and households, growing demands on information and communication technology, a sustainable and environmentally sound energy supply and high safety and comfort standard. Modern life wouldn't be possible without copper.

Despite the presence of competition problems, the global recovery trend is clear, copper stranded wire retains its advantage in many application field, investors are still optimistic about this area; the future will still have more new investment enter the field. Over the next five years, LPI(LP Information) projects that Copper Stranded Wire will register a 0.4% CAGR in terms of revenue, reach US$ 230 million by 2023, from US$ 220 million in 2017.
