The global Bolter Miner market size is predicted to grow from US$ 305 million in 2025 to US$ 488 million in 2032; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 7.1% from 2026 to 2032.

The Bolter Miner is a coal mine roadway excavation equipment that integrates excavation and bolt support functions. It can simultaneously perform roadway excavation and roof/side bolt support operations, achieving parallel excavation and bolting, greatly enhancing roadway excavation efficiency and safety while reducing labor intensity.

In the international market, Sandvik focuses on intelligent upgrades. Its flagship model, the MB672, integrates 5G and a digital twin system, boasting a cutting power of 450kW and a maximum daily cut of 35.7 meters in semi-coal-rock roadways. The compact MB650 model is suitable for thin coal seams, with a body height reduced to 1.8 meters and excellent positioning accuracy. Its electric version reduces energy consumption by 25%, gaining favor in the European market. Komatsu, on the other hand, focuses on hard rock capabilities, with its BM3000 series cutting teeth exceeding the industry average lifespan by 40%.

In the Chinese market, the localization rate has exceeded 65%, forming a tiered market structure. China Railway Construction Heavy Industry Corporation Limited's ZJM series has achieved a market share exceeding 55%, with the ZJM4200 model achieving a monthly cut of over 1500 meters. Its independently developed hydraulic system has broken the foreign monopoly. Sany Group's JMY200 achieves remote centralized control over distances of over 1000 meters, and the electric version, the JMY260, has secured multiple orders from Huaneng.
