The global Crab Field Rice market size is predicted to grow from US$ 2923 million in 2025 to US$ 3801 million in 2032; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 3.6% from 2026 to 2032.

Crab-rice (also known as crab-field rice) is an ecological agricultural product produced through the 'rice-crab co-cultivation' model: river crabs (such as mitten crabs) are raised in rice paddies while rice is grown. The crabs' activity improves soil structure and water quality, reduces pests and diseases, and lowers the use of pesticides and fertilizers. It solves the problems of low efficiency and severe pesticide and fertilizer pollution associated with traditional single-crop rice production, achieving a win-win situation of improved rice quality and increased profits from crab farming. The average price of this product is approximately US$1200 per ton, with global sales of approximately 2.49 million tons. Crab-rice is a product that balances ecological and economic benefits. Although its market size is smaller than that of ordinary rice, its growth potential is significant. Its core advantages lie in its green and ecological nature and dual benefits. In the future, it will rely on organic certification, intelligent management, and brand promotion to open up a larger market.
