Bandages are commonly used for minor cuts, wounds, and abrasions to protect the injured area and aid in the healing process. There are various types of adhesive bandages available, each with its own characteristics and applications.

General Adhesive Bandages: These are the traditional, fabric or plastic strips with a gauze pad in the center and an adhesive backing. They are widely available in pharmacies and stores, commonly known as 'band-aids' or adhesive bandages.

Liquid Adhesive Bandages: Liquid adhesive bandages come in liquid form and are applied directly to the wound. They often create a protective, flexible barrier that adheres to the skin.

Spray-Type Adhesive Bandages: Spray-type adhesive bandages are applied by spraying a liquid over the wound area. The liquid forms a protective film as it dries.

Hydrocolloid Adhesive Bandages: Hydrocolloid adhesive bandages are made of a gel-forming material that creates a moist environment over the wound. They are often thicker and more absorbent than traditional bandages.

The global Adhesive Bandage Products market size is projected to grow from US$ 2431 million in 2024 to US$ 3221 million in 2030; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 4.8% from 2024 to 2030.
