Abstracts

The global ADV Motorcycle Tyre market size is predicted to grow from US$ 502 million in 2025 to US$ 695 million in 2032; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 4.7% from 2026 to 2032.

In 2025, global ADV Motorcycle Tyre production reached approximately 17.76 million units, with an average price of $28.9 per unit.

ADV Motorcycle Tyre is a multi-surface motorcycle tyre designed for adventure and dual-purpose motorcycles that frequently switch between paved roads and unpaved terrain such as gravel, dirt, light mud, and rocky tracks. It aims to balance highway stability, wet grip, mileage, and noise control with off-road traction, tread self-cleaning, and resistance to punctures and cuts. Products are commonly positioned by on-road/off-road usage ratios (e.g., 90/10, 70/30, 50/50), which reflect different tread block layouts, carcass stiffness, compound design, and heat management needs.

Upstream, major raw materials include natural rubber and synthetic rubber (SBR/BR), reinforcing fillers (carbon black and/or silica), steel bead wire, textile cord fabrics (nylon/polyester/rayon), and chemical additives such as sulfur, accelerators, antioxidants, and plasticizers; some higher-end designs use aramid or other high-strength fibers for reinforcement. Typical production lines involve compounding and mixing (internal mixer), calendaring/extrusion for tread and sidewall components, bead preparation, cord ply cutting, green tire building on a drum, curing/vulcanization in a tyre mould, and quality inspection (appearance, uniformity, balance; sometimes X-ray or shearography). Downstream customers include motorcycle OEMs and dealer networks for OE fitment, and a large replacement market served through distributors, tire shops, service centers, and e-commerce. Industry gross margin varies by brand tier and channel mix: value products generally sit at a moderate level, while premium brands with stronger R&D, stricter quality control, and higher pricing power typically achieve higher margins.
