The global Aftermarket Domain Names market size is predicted to grow from US$ million in 2025 to US$ million in 2031; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of % from 2025 to 2031.

Aftermarket domain names refer to domain names that are already registered by someone else and are being resold in the secondary market. These domain names are typically sold by individuals or companies who no longer have a use for them or are looking to make a profit by selling them at a higher price than what they originally paid.

Aftermarket domain names can be valuable assets, especially if they have desirable keywords, are short and memorable, or have a strong brand association. They are often sought after by businesses or individuals who want to establish an online presence or enhance their existing one.

The prices of aftermarket domain names can vary significantly, ranging from a few dollars to millions of dollars, depending on factors such as the domain's perceived value, demand, and negotiation skills of the buyer and seller. There are various online platforms and marketplaces dedicated to buying and selling aftermarket domain names, where interested parties can browse and purchase these domains.
