Abstracts

The global Aquatic Composite Premix market size is predicted to grow from US$ 994 million in 2025 to US$ 1555 million in 2032; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 5.5% from 2026 to 2032.

In 2025, global production of aquatic composite premix reached approximately 512,800 metric tons, with an average selling price of around USD 1,980 per ton. Aquatic composite premix is a high-value aquafeed intermediate product formulated on the basis of vitamin and mineral premixes, further incorporating amino acids, functional trace elements, immune-modulating components, gut health factors, and anti-stress additives. It is applicable to industrialized farming systems for fish, shrimp, and selected specialty aquatic species. Typically included at low inclusion rates in compound feeds, aquatic composite premix serves as a key link between basic nutrition and functional feed solutions, supporting nutritional enhancement, health management, and production stability.

Currently, the aquatic composite premix market is experiencing steady expansion while remaining relatively niche in overall scale, with demand closely linked to the level of aquaculture industrialization and penetration of high-performance feeds. Market conditions indicate that supply is dominated by mid-to-large aquafeed groups and specialized premix producers, while downstream customers place strong emphasis on formulation compatibility, batch consistency, and on-farm performance rather than price alone. In terms of development trends, the industry is gradually shifting from nutrition-oriented solutions toward integrated functional and health-management approaches, with composite premixes increasingly playing a proactive role in immune support, stress mitigation, and gut health maintenance. Market perspectives suggest that although large-scale explosive growth is unlikely, aquatic composite premix benefits from solid medium- to long-term growth fundamentals driven by intensification, disease control requirements, and the continued penetration of premium aquafeeds.
