An automatic heat shrink wrapper machine is an advanced packaging device that uses heat shrink technology2. It automatically wraps products with heat shrinkable film and then heats the film to make it shrink and tightly wrap the products1. It consists of a conveying system, a heat shrinking system and a control system1. The conveying system moves the products to be packaged to the designated position. The heat shrinking system generates high-temperature hot air through a heat shrinking furnace to shrink the film wrapped on the products. The control system, usually based on a PLC controller and a touch screen interface, monitors and controls the entire packaging process, enabling the setting and adjustment of parameters such as temperature, speed and time1.
