The global Barbeque (BBQ) Grill market size is predicted to grow from US$ 4964 million in 2025 to US$ 6849 million in 2032; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 4.7% from 2026 to 2032.

A gas BBQ grill is an outdoor cooking device powered by liquefied petroleum gas (LPG) or natural gas, using burner systems to provide controllable heat for grilling meat, seafood, and vegetables. These products offer easy ignition, stable temperature control, and relatively simple maintenance, and are mainly used in residential backyards, outdoor gatherings, and light foodservice scenarios. The structure typically includes burner systems, ignition devices, cooking grates, and temperature control systems, with variations in burner count and cooking area across models.

From a market structure perspective, gas BBQ grills represent a mainstream segment within the broader grill market, with demand primarily concentrated in North American and European backyard consumption markets. Within the overall grill ecosystem, gas products hold an important but not dominant position, coexisting with charcoal and portable grills in a diversified market structure. Industry barriers are moderate, with competition focused on burner efficiency, temperature control capability, product durability, and brand channel strength. The market shows a combination of leading brand concentration and fragmentation in the lower-end segments.
