Beer Line Cleaner is a specialized chemical solution used to clean and sanitize draft beer dispensing systems, removing yeast, bacteria, mold, and mineral deposits that can build up in beer lines, faucets, and kegs, ensuring consistent taste and hygiene. The supply chain begins upstream with chemical producers that supply raw materials such as caustic soda, potassium hydroxide, surfactants, and sanitizing agents. Midstream, specialty beverage chemical companies formulate these into alkaline or acid-based cleaners, package them in concentrated liquid or powder form, and distribute them to wholesalers and breweries. Downstream, breweries, pubs, restaurants, and bar operators purchase beer line cleaners through distributors, beverage equipment suppliers, or direct channels, applying them in regular cleaning cycles to maintain system integrity, meet food safety standards, and preserve the quality of beer served. The global Beer Line Cleaner industry operates with an estimated annual production of 145,000 tons, supported by a production capacity of around 190,000 tons per year, while manufacturers maintain an average gross margin of about 27%. Products are typically priced between USD 3,500–9,500 per ton.

United States market for Beer Line Cleaner is estimated to increase from US$ million in 2025 to US$ million by 2032, at a CAGR of % from 2026 through 2032.
