The black pearl, a bronze colored pearl, is a very precious variety of jewelry. It symbolizes the crystallization of the most difficult years and is known as the most painful tears of the mother shell, rare and noble because of its ordeal. Before the successful launch of the black nucleated South Sea pearls, the only black pearls available for sale were the rare and very expensive natural black pearls, or the faded Japanese nucleated akoya pearls, which are dyed black with silver nitrate, and a small number of imitation black pearls.
