The global Book Recycling Service market size is predicted to grow from US$ 4754 million in 2025 to US$ 6685 million in 2032; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 5.0% from 2026 to 2032.

Book recycling services target idle books, used books, secondhand textbooks, books discarded by libraries, books in bookstore inventory, surplus books from publishing and wholesale, books donated by individuals, and books donated by institutions. Through processes such as online barcode valuation, ISBN identification, door-to-door or mail-in book collection, offline store buyback, bulk book collection, charitable donation reception, warehousing and sorting, condition grading, disinfection and refurbishment, inventory shelving, repricing, secondary sales, charitable redistribution, or environmentally friendly disposal, books are reintroduced into the reading, trading, donation, or resource recycling system.

From a demand structure perspective, the main demand for book recycling services comes from four scenarios: individual households clearing out unused books, student textbook buybacks and discounted book purchases, library and school inventory disposal, charitable donations, and reading support in low-resource areas. Textbook buybacks are the most price-sensitive, typically relying on ISBN barcode scanning for valuation, quick quotes, free shipping, and timely payment; general used book recycling relies more on category acceptance standards, condition ratings, and resale inventory turnover; library surplus disposal emphasizes bulk logistics, sorting efficiency, revenue sharing, and social responsibility; charitable book donations emphasize sorting, transportation, destination matching, and social impact. With the continued development of the circular economy, low-carbon consumption, secondhand e-commerce, and charitable reading initiatives, book recycling services not only have commercial attributes but also cultural resource redistribution and environmental protection attributes.
