Broadleaf herbicide is a type of selective pesticide specifically used to kill broadleaf weeds (such as dandelions, plantains, ragweed, and sorrel). It is widely used in lawns, farmlands, orchards, and green areas. This type of herbicide can identify and destroy the physiological structure of broadleaf plants without harming grass plants (such as lawns, corn, and wheat), so it is particularly suitable for lawn maintenance and field management of crops. They enter the plant body through leaf absorption or root absorption, interfering with the balance of plant hormones or the photosynthesis process, causing the weeds to wither and die. Common active ingredients include 2,4-D, MCPA, chlorpyrifos methyl, fluclopyralid, etc., which are highly selective, easy to use, and have a wide range of applications. They are an indispensable weed control method in modern agricultural and horticultural management.
