Abstracts

The global Calcium Sulfate Network Floor market size is predicted to grow from US$ million in 2025 to US$ million in 2032; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of % from 2026 to 2032.

Calcium sulfate network floor, also known as calcium sulfate raised floor or calcium sulfate composite floor, is a modern floor system mainly used in data centers, telecommunications rooms, electronic factories, laboratories and other environments that require efficient heat dissipation and highly flexible wiring.

Calcium sulfate network floor is mainly composed of calcium sulfate crystals, high-density fiberboard, metal brackets and decorative surface layer. Among them, calcium sulfate crystals are the main material of the floor, which has good fire resistance, waterproof, mildew resistance, and corrosion resistance, as well as excellent mechanical strength and wear resistance. High-density fiberboard as the base material provides the stability and bearing capacity of the floor. The metal bracket is responsible for supporting the weight of the floor and ensuring the flatness and stability of the floor. The decorative surface layer can be selected according to actual needs, and common ones include PVC surface layer, wooden surface layer, etc.

The biggest feature of calcium sulfate network floor is its high flexibility and adjustability. The metal bracket under the floor can be adjusted according to actual needs to adapt to different ground conditions and load requirements. At the same time, the floor itself can also be disassembled and reorganized to facilitate the installation and maintenance of equipment. In addition, the calcium sulfate network floor also has good heat dissipation performance, which can effectively conduct the heat generated by the equipment to under the floor to maintain the normal operation of the equipment.

United States market for Calcium Sulfate Network Floor is estimated to increase from US$ million in 2025 to US$ million by 2032, at a CAGR of % from 2026 through 2032.
