Abstracts

The global Cardboard Laminating Machine market size is predicted to grow from US$ 9139 million in 2025 to US$ 13110 million in 2032; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 5.4% from 2026 to 2032.

In 2024, global sales of cardboard laminating machines reached 48,000 units, with an average selling price of US$185,000 per unit. Cardboard laminating machines are used to coat the surface of cardboard with protective or decorative films, and are widely used in the packaging, printing, and paper products industries, especially in food, consumer goods, and pharmaceutical packaging. The main upstream raw materials include stainless steel, film, control systems, motors, and rolling devices, with raw material consumption accounting for approximately 70% of the equipment cost. Global total production capacity is approximately 55,000 units per year, with industry gross margins ranging from 18% to 22%. Downstream market demand is concentrated among manufacturers of cartons, packaging materials, and packaging products, particularly in e-commerce packaging and high-end product packaging, where demand accounts for over 75%. With increasing environmental regulations restricting plastic films, cardboard laminating machines are developing towards environmentally friendly coating technologies, pollution-free solvent-based materials, and intelligent control systems. Future business opportunities mainly lie in energy conservation and emission reduction, improved automated coating precision, and innovative applications of green packaging materials.

United States market for Cardboard Laminating Machine is estimated to increase from US$ million in 2025 to US$ million by 2032, at a CAGR of % from 2026 through 2032.
