Cat-eye nail polish is a special type of nail polish containing magnetic metal particles. Through magnetic attraction, it forms a 3D dynamic light band, mimicking the 'cat's eye effect' of a cat's eye stone, and is a top-tier nail polish category globally.

The main components of cat-eye nail polish include base resin, colorant, and magnetic particles (ferrite/iron powder, 5-10 μ m). A magnetic field orients the particles, causing light refraction to create light and shadow bands that flow with the angle or direction of light. The key is the magnetic attraction before the polish dries or is cured under a UV/LED lamp, followed by curing.

The upstream core raw materials for cat-eye nail polish include photopolymer base (acrylate copolymers, polyurethane acrylates, silicone resins), magnetic powders (ferrite magnetic powder, iron oxide magnetic powder, mica-coated magnetic powder, chameleon magnetic powder), solvents and additives, and colorant. Downstream, it is sold to nail salons and individuals through online and offline channels.

In 2025, global sales of cat-eye nail polish reached 193 million units, with a production capacity of approximately 245 million units. The average selling price was US$5.65 per unit, and the average gross profit margin was 35%-45%.
