Abstracts

The report requires updating with new data and is sent in 48 hours after order is placed.

According to our LPI (LP Information) latest study, the global Chinese Cooking Wine market size was valued at US$ million in 2022. With growing demand in downstream market, the Chinese Cooking Wine is forecast to a readjusted size of US$ million by 2029 with a CAGR of % during review period.

The research report highlights the growth potential of the global Chinese Cooking Wine market. Chinese Cooking Wine are expected to show stable growth in the future market. However, product differentiation, reducing costs, and supply chain optimization remain crucial for the widespread adoption of Chinese Cooking Wine. Market players need to invest in research and development, forge strategic partnerships, and align their offerings with evolving consumer preferences to capitalize on the immense opportunities presented by the Chinese Cooking Wine market.

Chinese cooking wine refers to wine specially used for cooking seasoning. It plays the role of removing fishy smell, improving fragrance and relieving greasiness in cooking. It is a single-flavor condiment. Chinese cooking wine is brewed by adding rice wine. Its alcohol concentration is low, less than 15%, but its ester content is high and it is rich in amino acids.

In recent years, with people's continuous pursuit of quality life and the increase in residents' meat consumption, cooking wine has become more and more widely used in cooking due to its product characteristics of removing fishy smell and increasing aroma. The market demand has grown rapidly, and the scale has also expanded. At present, cooking wine has become one of the necessary condiments in Chinese families. It is expected that the market size of the cooking wine industry will continue to grow on the basis that China's economy continues to develop steadily and the level of urbanization continues to improve.
