Cod skin collagen peptide refers to a type of protein extracted from the skin of cod fish through a process called hydrolysis. Collagen peptides are short chains of amino acids derived from collagen, which is the most abundant protein in the human body and a key component of skin, bones, tendons, ligaments, and other connective tissues. Cod skin collagen peptide specifically comes from the skin of cod fish, which is rich in collagen. Through the hydrolysis process, the collagen protein is broken down into smaller peptides, making it easier for the body to absorb and utilize. This type of collagen peptide is often used in supplements, skincare products, and functional foods to support skin health, joint health, and overall well-being.

The global Cod Skin Collagen Peptide market size is projected to grow from US$ million in 2024 to US$ million in 2030; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of % from 2024 to 2030.
