Abstracts

The global Coloured Granite market size is predicted to grow from US$ 12140 million in 2025 to US$ 14120 million in 2032; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 2.2% from 2026 to 2032.

In mining and trade statistics, Coloured Granite generally denotes all granite varieties other than black granite, covering white, grey, beige, brown, red, green, blue and multi-coloured stones. Mineralogically they consist mainly of feldspar, quartz and mica, offering high compressive strength, low water absorption and excellent abrasion and weather resistance. Coloured granites are processed into blocks, slabs, tiles, countertops and landscape pieces. Compared with black granites, they provide a wider palette and richer patterning, and account for the bulk of decorative applications in residential fit-outs, commercial interiors and public buildings, representing the dominant share of value in the global granite market. The coloured-granite value chain can be summarized as "multi-country quarrying – global slab-processing hubs – local fabrication and installation." Upstream, quarries in India, Brazil, China, Italy, Spain, Finland and other regions extract white, grey and coloured granites, selling blocks typically at about USD 500–800/m? (?USD 180–300/t), slightly below premium black blocks but at much larger volumes. Midstream processors in India, China, Turkey and Brazil convert these into slabs and tiles, apply resin treatment and finishes and export worldwide, capturing gross margins of roughly 20–35%. Downstream, fabricators and installers serving kitchen and bath, commercial interiors, fa?ades and landscaping usually achieve overall profit margins of around 5–20%, depending on scale and efficiency. Light-coloured, strongly figured and rare blue/green materials enjoy higher price points, so coloured granites as a group tend to deliver better per-ton margins than generic dark base materials.

In 2024, global coloured granite production reached approximately 110 million tons, with an average global market price of around US$ 105 per ton.
