Compacted strand wire rope is a steel wire rope that is based on ordinary strands and processed to make each wire in the wire rope more compact. Specifically, the compacted strand steel wire rope compresses the strands to a certain extent by drawing or rolling to make them more closely combined. This treatment method can improve the strength, wear resistance and corrosion resistance of the steel wire rope, making it suitable for hoisting, traction, hanging and other working environments that require high strength and durability. Compacted strand wire rope has a relatively long service life, but is relatively stiff and may require the use of larger diameter pulleys. In mining wire ropes and other aspects, compacted strand wire ropes have good application effects.
