Abstracts

The global Confinement Center Service market size is predicted to grow from US$ 2691 million in 2025 to US$ 4418 million in 2032; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 7.5% from 2026 to 2032.

Confinement Center Service is a professional, one-stop intensive care service for postpartum women (usually referring to the "puerperium" 4-6 weeks after delivery) and newborns. It focuses on postpartum physical recovery, newborn health care, and maternal and infant life support. It aims to create a scientific, comfortable, and safe postpartum recovery environment for mothers and babies, help women smoothly pass through the critical physiological and psychological recovery period, and at the same time help newborns get off to a healthy start.

The confinement center service market is experiencing rapid expansion, high-end and medical-grade service integration, and regional expansion, driven by factors such as consumption upgrades, technological innovation, and policy guidance. Globalization and industry standardization are also progressing simultaneously.

Basic nursing care is no longer sufficient; medical-grade transformation has become the mainstream direction. More and more confinement centers are partnering with maternity hospitals, equipping themselves with professional teams including licensed physicians and nutritionists to provide medical-grade services such as wound care and pelvic floor muscle rehabilitation. The number of centers with medical institution practice licenses is projected to triple by 2029, and the penetration rate of services such as traditional Chinese medicine conditioning is expected to reach 78% by 2026. Digital service models are maturing, with over 40% of confinement centers in the Asia-Pacific region introducing remote consultations and virtual consultations, allowing mothers to access
