Cosmetic-grade lanolin wax is a natural polymer wax extracted and refined from wool. Because its composition is similar to human sebum, it is an excellent natural emollient, moisturizer, and emulsifier. It possesses strong water-absorbing and breathable barrier functions, preventing skin dehydration and is commonly used in high-end skin lotions, lipsticks, and hair care products to improve texture.

The upstream of the cosmetic-grade lanolin wax industry chain consists of animal husbandry (raw wool washing) and fine chemical refining, with raw materials derived from lanolin. The midstream involves the production of high-purity cosmetic-grade lanolin wax and the processing of derivative products. Demand growth is primarily driven by its moisturizing and emulsifying properties, with high quality and low impurities being the core competitive advantages.

Global sales in 2025 are estimated at approximately 6,000 tons, with an average selling price of US$12.8 per kilogram. The industry's gross profit margin is between 25% and 30%.
