Abstracts

The global Crab Feed market size is predicted to grow from US$ 1098 million in 2025 to US$ 1656 million in 2032; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 6.2% from 2026 to 2032.

Crab feed is a formulated feed specifically designed for the farming of crustaceans such as river crabs, mitten crabs, and mud crabs. It contains high protein (30-45%), a calcium-to-phosphorus ratio of approximately 2:1, 5-8% crude fat, 25% crude fiber, and water stability 2 hours. It solves the problems of slow growth, soft shells, and low survival rates caused by traditional omnivorous feeding methods. The average price is approximately USD 1.2/kg, with global sales of approximately 933,000 tons/year. The crab feed industry chain consists of upstream raw materials such as fishmeal, soybean meal, and corn, with prices fluctuating between 8-12%; midstream feed processing companies with single-line capacity of 1-20 tons/hour; and downstream farms of river crabs, mitten crabs, and mud crabs, with demand driven by consumption upgrades. Future development focuses on alternative proteins (such as insect meal and algae), functional additives (immune enhancers), and intelligent feeding systems to achieve efficient, environmentally friendly, and sustainable farming models.

United States market for Crab Feed is estimated to increase from US$ million in 2025 to US$ million by 2032, at a CAGR of % from 2026 through 2032.
