A Crawler Live Water Floor Scrubber is an advanced type of robotic cleaning machine that combines a crawler-style track system with a continuous fresh water circulation mechanism to achieve highly efficient and thorough floor cleaning. Unlike traditional wheel-based scrubbers, the crawler track design provides superior traction, stability, and adaptability across different surfaces, making it particularly effective on uneven, slippery, or obstacle-rich floors. The “live water” system ensures that only clean water is used during the scrubbing process, with dirty water continuously separated and removed to prevent recontamination, resulting in a more hygienic cleaning outcome. Equipped with sensors, intelligent navigation, and in some models AI-powered object recognition, crawler live water floor scrubbers can operate autonomously, map environments, avoid obstacles, and optimize cleaning paths. They are increasingly applied in both residential and commercial environments where deep cleaning, safety, and automation are priorities, offering a modern solution that enhances efficiency while maintaining high sanitary standards.

The industrial chain of a crawler live water floor scrubber spans upstream raw materials and key components (metals, plastics, motors, batteries, pumps, sensors), midstream manufacturing and assembly of the scrubber system, downstream distribution through sales and service networks, and end-user applications in industrial, commercial, and
