The global Crew Management Service market size is predicted to grow from US$ 1743 million in 2025 to US$ 2761 million in 2032; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 6.9% from 2026 to 2032.

Crew management services refer to professional services that provide a series of comprehensive services such as crew recruitment, training, dispatch, management and support for ships. This service is usually provided by professional crew management companies to ensure that the ship has qualified and healthy crew members and can meet the requirements of international shipping regulations.

Crew management services have entered a phase of professionalization, digitization, and globalization. Leading service providers offer shipping companies full-cycle human resources solutions by integrating crew recruitment, training, manning, compensation and benefits, certification management, and compliance services. With the International Maritime Organization (IMO) tightening regulations on crew qualifications and working conditions, and the rise of smart ships and green shipping, the industry's demand for highly qualified, multi-faceted crews continues to grow. This development is reflected in the accelerated digital transformation of leading companies, who are leveraging crew management systems to achieve information visualization, intelligent scheduling, and automated compliance. Meanwhile, Asian countries (such as China, the Philippines, and India) have become core sources of crew supply. Future trends will focus on building a global crew resource network, deepening the application of AI and big data in crew performance assessment and risk warning, strengthening mental health support and remote training, and promoting the professionalization, standardization, and sustainable development of crews to address challenges arising from talent shortages, an aging population, and changing international regulations.
