Dedicated line logistics, also known as freight dedicated line, refers to logistics companies using their own trucks, special vehicles or aviation resources to transport goods to their dedicated line destinations. Generally, dedicated line logistics has its own branch or cooperative outlets at the destination so that the trucks can be loaded with goods both ways. Dedicated line logistics is an important form of LTL logistics. Different from other LTL transportation, it is a transportation organization method that builds or relies on freight stations at the origin and destination, organizes transportation capacity between the two points for direct transportation, and provides terminal logistics services through freight stations.
