However, product differentiation, reducing costs, and supply chain optimization remain crucial for the widespread adoption of Dental Gypsum. Market players need to invest in research and development, forge strategic partnerships, and align their offerings with evolving consumer preferences to capitalize on the immense opportunities presented by the Dental Gypsum market.

Gypsum is a naturally occurring, white powdery mineral with the chemical name calcium sulphate dihydrate ($\text{CaSO}_4 \cdot 2\text{H}_2\text{O}$). Gypsum products used in dentistry are based on calcium sulphate hemihydrate ($\text{CaSO}_4 \cdot \frac{1}{2}\text{H}_2\text{O}$).

Many dental restorations and appliances are constructed outside the patient's mouth using models and dies which should be accurate replicas of the patient's hard and soft tissues.

The term model is normally used when referring to a replica of several teeth and their associated soft tissues or, alternatively, to an edentulous arch. The term die is normally used when referring to a replica of a single tooth.

The morphology of the hard and soft tissues is recorded in an impression and models and dies are prepared using materials which are initially fluid and can be poured into the impression, then harden to form a rigid replica.

Many materials have been used for producing models and dies but the most popular are the materials based on gypsum products.

Market competition is intense. Heraeus Kulzer, USG, Kerr Dental, Yoshino Gypsum, Whip-Mix and Saint-Gobain Formula, etc. are the leaders of the industry, with about 49% market shares.

Asia-Pacific is the largest consumption place, with a consumption market share nearly 37%. Following Asia-Pacific, North America is the second largest consumption place with the consumption market share of 33%.
