The global Dental Needles market size is predicted to grow from US$ 74.3 million in 2024 to US$ 103 million in 2030; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 5.5% from 2024 to 2030.

Dental needles are specialized medical devices used in dental procedures to deliver local anesthetics or other medications to oral tissues. These needles are designed to ensure precision and minimize patient discomfort during treatments such as extractions, fillings, root canals, and gum surgeries. Dental needles typically consist of a stainless steel needle, a hub that connects to a syringe, and a protective cap for safe handling.

Dental Needles Market Drivers

The dental needles market is driven by the increasing prevalence of oral health issues, including cavities, periodontal diseases, and tooth extractions, which necessitate routine dental procedures. With growing awareness of oral hygiene and the rising demand for cosmetic dentistry, the frequency of dental treatments is steadily increasing, thereby boosting the demand for dental needles. Additionally, advancements in needle technology, such as the development of ultra-fine and pain-reducing needles, are enhancing patient comfort and encouraging more people to seek dental care.

Another significant driver is the expanding geriatric population, which is more susceptible to oral health problems and often requires regular dental procedures. Coupled with rising healthcare expenditure and improving access to dental care services in emerging economies, these factors are propelling the growth of the dental needles market globally.

Dental Needles Market Challenges

Despite the growing demand, the dental needles market faces challenges such as stringent regulatory requirements for the manufacturing and approval of medical devices, which can delay product launches and increase costs for manufacturers. Additionally, the risk of needlestick injuries among dental professionals remains a concern, necessitating continuous training and the adoption of safety protocols, which may increase operational costs for dental clinics.

Another challenge is the rising preference for needle-free technologies, such as jet injectors and transdermal patches, which aim to reduce patient anxiety associated with needles. These alternatives, while still emerging, could potentially limit the market growth for traditional dental needles in the long term.

Global dental needles main players include Septodont, Dentsply Sirona, Terumo, Shinhung, Nirpo, etc., totally accounting for about 65% of the market. Americas is the largest market, with a share over 39%. As for the types of products, it can be divided into 25G, 27G, 30G, 31G and others. The most common product is 30 G, with a share over 50%. In terms of applications, it is widely used in hospital and dental clinic. Dental clinic is the largest application, holding a share over 49%.
