Abstracts

The global Diamond and Gold Jewelry market size is predicted to grow from US$ 156326 million in 2025 to US$ 206298 million in 2032; it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 4.1% from 2026 to 2032.

Gold jewelry and diamond jewelry are two of the most representative product categories in the jewelry market. They are typically made from gold, karat gold, or platinum as the base material, combined with pure gold craftsmanship or set with gemstones such as diamonds. They possess not only decorative and artistic qualities but also investment value and emotional symbolism. Gold jewelry emphasizes the intrinsic value of the material and its cultural heritage, while diamond jewelry, with its rarity and dazzling brilliance, is the preferred choice for important occasions such as weddings and anniversaries. The average price of this product is approximately US$598 per piece, with global sales of approximately 266 million pieces.

Gold jewelry is not merely an ornament; it is a dual symbol of culture and wealth. In Eastern culture, it carries the meaning of auspiciousness, inheritance, and status; in the global market, it is an important asset for hedging against inflation and preserving and increasing value. With the innovation of design concepts and the transformation of consumption attitudes, gold jewelry is evolving from traditional heaviness to light luxury and fashion. New techniques such as ancient gold craftsmanship, hard gold, and colored gold are constantly refreshing people's aesthetic perception of gold, giving it new vitality among young consumers. Diamond jewelry has long transcended the definition of 'luxury goods,' becoming a multi-faceted carrier of emotional expression, status symbol, and artistic design. From the classic advertising slogan 'A diamond is forever' to the current Generation Z's pursuit of individuality and environmental protection, diamond jewelry is undergoing a transformation from tradition to innovation.
