Down Filling Substance refers to natural feathers and down used as filling materials for clothing, bedding and outdoor equipment, mainly from geese or ducks. Down has excellent warmth retention, lightness and breathability, so it is widely used in products such as down jackets, duvets and sleeping bags. Down filling is divided into goose down and duck down according to its source, among which goose down is highly regarded for its large down clusters and better warmth retention. The quality of down is usually measured by indicators such as down content, fluffiness and cleanliness. Down content refers to the proportion of down in the down, fluffiness refers to the degree of expansion of the down under specific conditions, and cleanliness involves the hygiene of the down.
